Power cannot be given, it has to be taken. That is what Sarkar Raj is about. It is an intense political drama and is fundamentally a study of power as it explores the traditions of development and takes a fresh look at the traditional versus modernity debate.

When Anita Rajan (Aishwarya Rai – Bachchan), CEO of international company, Sheppard Power Plant, brings a power plant proposal to be set up in rural Maharashtra before the Nagre's, an insightful Shankar (Abhishek Bachchan) is quick to realize the benefits the power plant can bring to the people. After convincing Sarkar (Amitabh Bachchan) who is against it for various reasons, Shankar undertakes a journey along with Anita to the villages of Maharashtra to mobilize support from the masses.

However, things are not what they seem to be and Shankar's dream project gradually becomes a political minefield. It is against this backdrop that evil forces mightier than ever, gang up together to bring down the regime of Sarkar and obliterate Sarkar's name from the political horizon. Amitabh Bachchan is Sarkar, Subhash Nagre, whom the people regard as their Messiah. Abhishek Bachchan is Shankar Nagre, a Management Graduate from the US. He has been helping his father (Sarkar) in his service to the people. Aishwarya Rai- Bachchan is in the role of an aggressive and highly ambitious business woman from London, who will stop at nothing to achieve her goals. She unwittingly unleashes a vicious war between the forces of tradition and progress. Sarkar Raj is the planned sequel to Sarkar. While Sarkar was inspired by Francis Ford Coppola's film The Godfather, the sequel is completely original.

This will be the first time the three actors are seen together in a film, since Rai's marriage to Abhishek Bachchan. Produced by Praveen Nischol, the film is expected to release in June 2008.

MERE BAAP PEHLE AAP

Dir: Priyadarshan Sharma Cast: Paresh Rawal, Om Puri, Akshaye Khanna, Rajpal Yadav, Manoj Joshi and Shobhana.

One formula that seldom fails in cinema is the story of a father and son where the father is always the enemy of the son, an enemy whom you love a lot. Mere Baap Pehle Aap is one of them.

It's a relationship between a father and son where the son wants the father to get married again even before he himself finds his lady love.

The story revolves around Janardhan Wishvanbhar Rane, (Paresh Rawal) a widower who has spent his life bringing up his two kids, Chirag (Manoj Joshi) and Gaurav (Akshaye Khanna). Now, when the duo has grown up, Gaurav takes up the responsibility of his father. Though he is the younger son, he treats his father like his son and is on guard with the vigilance of a disciplined parent. Gaurav meets his old college friend Sheekha (Genelia D'souza) who stays with her guardian Anuradha (Shobhana) who is also Janardhan's first love. Gaurav wants his father to get married to his lost love. Gaurav and Sheekha embark on a rib-tickling journey to arrange the father's love marriage and in the process, find soul mates in each other.

Directed by Priyadarshan, the comedy king, this is yet another movie which will make you laugh. The cast include his comedy gang, Akshay Khanna, Paresh Rawal, Om Puri and Rajpal Yadav along with Genelia D'Souza. Versatile actor Naseruddin Shah is the new member of the team.

According to Akshay Khanna, "this is a movie that will make you feel positive about life, a feel good film"

Priyadarshan is known for making remakes of Malayalam films and this one seems to be yet another remake of a southern hit. The music has been composed by Vidyasagar, of Hulchul fame and the lyrics are penned by one of Bollywood's romantic writers Sameer. The film is expected to release in June 2008.
